As more women in Europe move up the professional ladder and become managers of big companies, more find it necessary to make business trips alone. Since this is a new activity for many, some advice is certainly useful. If you are married, it is a good idea to encourage your husband and children to learn to cook a few simple dishes rather than stay hungry or buy sandwiches while you are away. They will be much happier and probably they will enjoy the experience. If you will be eating alone most of the time, choose good restaurants. The food they offer will be much better for your health. You will probably get better service and almost certainly a better table. Finally, and most importantly, analyze your travel needs as a businesswoman. This starts with lightweight luggage which you can easily carry even when fully packed. Take a smaller case inside your suitcase. It will turn out to be extremely handy for dirty clothes, as well as for business documents and papers you no longer need on the trip. And make sure you have a briefcase so that you can keep currently required papers separate. Obviously, experience helps, but you can make things easier on yourself from the very beginning by careful planning so that right from the start you really can have a pleasant and successful business trip.
